"WAS HE ASKING FOR IT?"

Recently, Harper's Weekly carried an item from the American Bar Association Journal declaring that few rapists are punished for their crime: only one in five rapes is reported and only one out of eight reported rapes ends in conviction. In a dialogue to demonstrate why most rape victims prefer not to press charges, the article asks us to imagine a robbery victim undergoing the same sort of cross-examination that a rape victim does:

"Mr. Smith, you were held up at gun point on the corner of First and Main?"

"Yes."

"Did you struggle with the robber?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"He was armed."

"Then you made a conscious decision to comply with his demands rather than resist?"

"Yes."

"Did you scream? Cry out?"

"No. I was afraid."

"I see. Have you ever been held up before?"

"No."

"Have you ever given money away?"

"Yes, of course."

"And you did so willingly?"

"What are you getting at?"

"Well, let's put it like this, Mr. Smith. You've given money away in the past. In fact you have quite a reputation for philanthropy. How can we be sure you weren't contriving to have your money taken by force?"

"Listen, if I wanted —"

"Never mind. What time did this holdup take place?"

"About 11 P.M."

"You were out on the street at 11 P.M.? Doing what?"

"Just walking."

"Just walking? You know that it's dangerous being out on the street that late at night. Weren't you aware that you could have been held up?"

"I hadn't thought about it."

"What were you wearing?"

"Let's see — a suit. Yes, a suit."

"An expensive suit?"

"Well — yes. I'm a successful lawyer, you know."

"In other words, Mr. Smith, you were walking around the streets late at night in a suit that practically advertised the fact that you might be a good target for some easy money. Isn't that so? I mean, if we didn't know better, Mr. Smith, we might even think that you were asking for this to happen, mightn't we?"

RAPE

Our culture not only fails to prevent rape but actively, if covertly, encourages it by forcing women to bear the burden of guilt for rape and allowing men convenient ways to evade responsibility for their sexual actions. Rape is not an isolated act nor is it an aberration from the norms of sexual and social behavior in this country. Rape is simply at the end of the continuum of male-aggressive, female-passive patterns that we have all been raised to believe are correct behavior for men and women.

If the conditions that make rape possible in our society are to be eliminated, some of our prevailing attitudes on the roles of the sexes must change. Our culture teaches the rudiments of rape by rewarding aggressive, domineering sexual behavior in men and passivity in women. Male eroticism has been wedded to power and intermingled with a dangerously explosive mixture of sex and hostility. Our culture has instilled in all men aggressiveness, a basic trait of the Continued on page 16

$1,000 REWARD FRIENDLY RAPIST

The "Friendly Rapist" as he has been referred to by the Dallas Police Department and the local media has been credited with the rapes of at least fifty (50) women in the north Dallas area.

He is called "friendly" because his victims report that he speaks in a gentle, friendly manner, despite his threats — and at times he is apologetic about his actions.

He operates in apartment complexes, late at night and in the early morning hours, much like a cat burglar. While burglary is not his primary motive, he does rob his victims.

After gaining entrance through unlocked windows, he frequently places a pillow case over the woman's head, ties her to the bed, and threatens to slash her throat if she does not cooperate with him.

On July 30, 1976 at 3:30 a.m., he returned to one woman's apartment a second time, arrogantly proclaiming: "Since this is my 50th time, I decided you are going to be twice."

THERE ARE NO FRIENDLY RAPISTS! This man is burglarizing women's apartments, holding knives to their throats and threatening death if they refuse sex with him. He is practicing an indiscriminate terrorism that not only denies his victims their own self determination, but severely limits the freedom of all women. Every human being is entitled to determine his or her own existence without the intrusion of another. He is violating that most basic human right with every victim added to his list.

Women do not enjoy rape, nor do women enjoy living in fear. The "Friendly Rapist" is, as all rapists are, an enemy to all women. It is for these reasons that we have joined together to offer this $1,000 reward for information leading to his arrest and conviction.

We do not see the prison system as a solution to rape — prisons have evolved into breeding grounds for crime that reinforce the hostile and aggressive behavior in men that is inherent in rape. However, we are left with no alternatives — we want his continual violence against women stopped immediately and custodial incarceration will accomplish this.

Any person having information concerning him is asked to contact us at our mailing address. For additional information please see REWARD INFORMATION on Page 3.

KITTY GENOVESE

Kitty Genovese, a 28-year-old bar worker, died in Queens, New York, in 1964. She was stabbed fifteen times during three separate attacks that lasted for 32 minutes outside the apartment building where she lived. The incident drew national attention when it was learned that 38 of her neighbors had either heard her cries for help or witnessed the attack and failed to respond or even notify the police because they did not want to "involve" themselves.

Her killer later admitted that he prowled the Queens streets at night with an "uncontrollable urge to kill" and selected women because they were "easier and didn't fight back."

"I cruised the streets, looking for a lone female. I had in mind to rape and kill her. I didn't care which girl, I just set out to find one."

This project is in memory of Kitty Genovese and other women who have lost their lives to sexism, a system that grooms women to be victims and ignores their cries of hurt and anger when they are physically and psychologically assaulted.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

In June of 1976 the members of the Kitty Genovese Women's Project made the decision to print and distribute the names of men who have been indicted for sex crimes against women. We made this decision because close to half of all women raped are raped by men they know. By publicizing the names of these men and confronting rapists publicly and privately whenever possible, we hope to make it more difficult for rapists to operate within a system of anonymity which allows them to continue their violence against women.

This is not a list of rapists. It is a list of men indicted for sex offenses against women. An indictment is filed after the district attorney's office and the grand jury determine there is sufficient evidence against the accused to warrant a trial. We began our research by separating sex related indictments from other indictments filed in the Dallas County Records Building (all public records). We excluded indictments for fondling, indecency with a child, incest and statutory rape (which may be sexual intercourse with a consenting minor) because of the possible non-violent and unclear nature of these crimes. We did, however, include these charges if a man had other rape related offenses or multiple charges against him.

Our decision to print this list was made with the understanding that each woman must use her own judgment in dealing with the men listed. Due to errors within the judicial process a small percentage of the men listed may be innocent of the charges brought against them. Also, consider there are men with similar and even the same names of the sex offenders listed. If you find a man on this list that you know and have doubts about, have the file pulled by case number in the County Records Building to read for yourself. If you want additional information, contact the court reporter assigned to the case about reading or purchasing a copy of the Statement of Facts from the trial.

WE ADVISE EXTREME CAUTION IN DEALING WITH ALL MULTIPLE OFFENDERS. Because of their prejudices and hatred against women, rapists often repeat their crime. Included in this list are 341 multiple offenders. Also, keep in mind that if a man is listed once, he may not have necessarily raped just one woman. He may have raped three women, five women, or even twenty women before one of his victims could make a positive identification or was willing to go through the humiliation usually involved in pressing charges against him.

This is not a complete list. It should contain the names of thousands more Dallas men. Do not assume that just because a man's name is not listed he is not a rapist. According to the most conservative estimates, 75 percent of all rapes are never reported because of the judicial and social pressures placed on the victim. Even when the rape is reported, the rapist may be allowed to "plea bargain" with the D.A.'s office to receive a lesser charge by agreeing to plead guilty. Another factor that prevents rapists from being brought to trial is the police department's "rooting out" system. In 1973 the Dallas Police Department released statistical information indicating that out of 722 "reported" rapes, there were 575 "actual" rapes. The "actual" rapes are determined after the police officers question the victim and determine whether or not the complaint is a "legitimate" one. It is during this stage of investigation that women often encounter hostile, insensitive and blatantly suspicious questioning by police officers, and many rapists are returned to the streets where they are free to rape again.

Rape is not a new problem. It has been a serious problem as long as women have been considered second class citizens, as objects rather than persons. What is new is women's determination to remove such violent coercion between women and men. The Kitty Genovese Women's Project has evolved from such times. All women directly involved in this project are working class residents of Dallas. Many of us are past rape victims; all of us are angry about rape. We have taken this action because this society has failed to deal with rape and women must. We see holding men publicly accountable for their crimes and forcing them to take responsibility for their actions as a necessary method. This project removes rapists from under the protective umbrella that our society has provided for them in the past. It brings them out in the open and provides women with information that will enable them to make conscious decisions about the men they relate to.

Rape is so deeply ingrained in our culture that no simple reforms can eliminate it. Women's groups must work on every level, depending on the politics and values of the members, to renew their right to their freedom of movement, free from the threat of rape. We encourage women in other cities to commit themselves to projects of this nature. If we can provide assistance of any kind please write our mailing address below. On a local level we hope women will share this information with their friends, families and co-workers and post it wherever possible in bars (especially singles' bars), washaterias, college campuses, grocery stores, community bulletin boards, filling stations, public buildings, etc. For additional copies write:

RAPE VICTIMS SPEAK OUT!

BUT THERE'S SOME DOUBT ABOUT YOUR VIRGINITY..... NOW HAVE YOU BEEN MESSING AROUND?

When I was fifteen-years-old I was raped at knife point. Dutifully, my mother and I went to the police to report it and began a desperately lonely journey through a legal process that degraded me almost as much as the rape itself.

At the time of my rape, the man who raped me had another rape case pending against him. The District Attorney's office not only failed to inform me, but completely ignored it in their consideration of my case. Instead, during hours of hostile questioning they demanded I admit the whole incident had been at best a figment of my mixed-up imagination and at worst a direct lie to get the "poor boy" in trouble.

When given the opportunity, I eagerly agreed to take a lie detector test to prove my innocence in this matter. Questions I remember are as follows:

Were you raped?	YES
Was it at knife point?	YES
Did you enjoy it?	NO
Did you have an orgasm?	NO
Have you ever had sexual intercourse before?	NO
Do you have homosexual tendencies?	NO

After the test was finished the polygraph operator leaned back in his chair and solemnly stated, "Well, you were raped, it was at knife point and you didn't enjoy it..." Ah, I thought, now they will press charges. "...but there's some doubt about your virginity. It's not completely a lie, but there seems to be some doubt in your own mind...." and he leaned forward again, pointing an accusing index finger in my face and said, "Now, have you been messing around?"

"No, sir," I said. It was my first lie. Sure I had messed around. I had done almost everything but have sexual intercourse. At fifteen I was still saving my virginity for my prince charming who would come along later. But what did that have to do with this anyway, I thought. I was raped and you know that now because I proved it and yet you're still asking me these questions in that same accusing voice.

After a brief conference, several of the DA's met with my mother. "Yes, Ms. —, your daughter was raped, but we feel it would be difficult to get a conviction because after all she was a runaway at the time and there is some doubt about her virginity. Actually, we suggest you not press charges because it can be a very bad experience for these girls in court you know." Yes, by that time we could well imagine what a bad experience it could be in court, so we did not press charges.

Since that time, the man who raped me has raped four other women who I have direct knowledge of and no telling how many I don't know about. He has been indicted for only two of them, one of which was dismissed.

When I was raped I had no political understanding of rape. I was led to believe the rape was my fault, that I had brought it on and that I should have done something to prevent it. I, like many other women, swallowed that sexist lie until 1970 when I attended my first workshop on rape. During the conference I stood dumbfounded as women, one after another, shared their own similar experiences about rape. Since that time I have committed myself to work with other women to force change in a culture that promotes and justifies the victimization of women.

International Women's Day, 1977, marks the fifth anniversary of the national formation of Women Against Rape. During the last five years women have researched the problems of rape and emerged with in-depth analysis of why it happens and what can be done to prevent it. We are no longer alone in our efforts to deal with rape. We know that our real alternatives are for all women to join in a common defense against male terrorism—or to crawl back into the woodwork of our separate cages. After years of existence in my own cage I began work on this project. It has been a supportive and rewarding experience.

STATE OF SIEGE

Anger is real to me and I'm not letting go of it. It started growing very concretely when I was nine years old. My mentally retarded brother and I were raped repeatedly by a middle-aged man in his trailer somewhere in Little Ferry, New Jersey. Working with the Kitty Genovese Women's Project has been an incredible outlet for my anger and yet towards the end—after months of getting my nourishment eating rapist's names for lunch and dinner—I find my anger growing rather than dispersing.

The mentality and emotions of rape ride close to the surface every time a man feels he has the right to interrupt what I'm saying because he thinks he's more important than I am. Each encounter I have that results in a man saying "Oh, come on, take it with a grain of salt, it's so insignificant," my anger comes closer and closer to violence. I know he doesn't live with the fear of rape every day. He doesn't worry about curtains that could possibly be seen through. He can sleep with his windows open or unlocked if he wants to, and I can't, and I resent it, and I won't take it with a grain of salt.

It's very clear to me that the mentality which dictates that waitress uniforms are revealing, and chuckles at a little plaque saying "sexretary" needs to be machine-gunned down every time it's encountered. It directly causes my sisters and me to fear rape every day. When women are coupled with sexual connotations, labels, and images that extend beyond the bounds of their personality, it encourages men to view sex as a commodity: something to be bought (prostitution), and if not bought then taken (rape). I can't separate them anymore; the daily injustices bring about the daily rapes.

When men tell me it's not fair to expect them to deal with my intensity, it's because they have the privilege to completely remove themselves from my pain. They have the privilege to be oppressive in every action they take and then be surprised, offended, defensive and self-righteous when those of us that have been pushed, push back.

Every day that I have cause to walk the streets of anytown, U.S.A., I am cautious and very aware of possible danger to myself. What I feel—gut level—is that I'm living in a war zone. It's an all out war, though no declarations have been signed, and women are open to attack at all times. The men on this list are the war criminals. They have attacked us on all fronts: in our bedrooms, our cars, at busstops, downtown, in our living rooms, our marriages, alleyways, backyards, in elevators and the list continues... After being over-powered and raped by an individual violent man, the court's, secure in 200 years of patriarchal justice, overpower us and rape our sense of worth and self-respect.

I'm ready to fight back. I'm ready to fight on all levels every day of my life. Physically, I am strengthening myself and becoming proficient in both hand-to-hand combat and weaponry. Mentally and intellectually, I will confront all situations of "psychic rape". I will confront the oppressive behavior patterns of people around me. I refuse to be raped again, and I will not watch the rape of any of my sisters.

This isn't just a hobby for me, the "movement of the year" to fulfill my social conscience. It's real and it's painful. It's not my fault I was raped when I was seventeen. It's not my fault that one million women are beaten by their husbands or lovers each year. I didn't choose that pain and neither did those women, but I am choosing to cause as much change as I can to destroy forever the inequality between women and men until no woman is ever raped again. We've got a long way to go, but sisters, there's a better world ahead.

STRONG, SELF-DETERMINED, ...A WILL OF IRON

When I first came to this city to finish this project my main motivation was to help a friend. It wasn't until a few of us sat down and really shared our own rape experiences with each other that I got in touch with the emotions and anger blocked up inside of me.

This remembering changed my involvement. Until each of you reading this can fully feel the effect of rape on women's lives you will not be able to relate to the importance of your part in this project.

So let me share what happened to me when I was seventeen and living in a small town in Virginia. I had been on my own for a year and knew how to survive on the streets. I had my own definite road to follow. What I wanted most was to experience my own strength and independence. I was strong, self-determined, with a will of iron. Every evening I would take a walk down to the river to watch the seagulls glide over the bay while the sun set over the water. It was a moment of peace and quiet reflection alone that helped me keep my head clear. Until one evening three men jumped me from behind and held a knife to my throat. I wasn't the typified helpless woman victim. I knew the strength of my own body...how to throw a punch, kick, claw, bite, scream and run...but that wasn't enough against the combined strength of three men. It felt like death to struggle so hard and still be helplessly pinned beneath the weight of a man's body. It was more than a physical violation...it was mental agony that can never be forgotten. I wanted to either kill them or to die rather than give into that total feeling of powerlessness. I could feel the rage inside of me exploding and yet it didn't matter...As each man took his turn with me again and again, I lost all desire to resist...my strength, self-determination, my will of iron was broken. I felt dead inside, sick with my own weakness. When they finally left me, I just lay there motionless and numb.

When the sun rose I managed to get to the police station and report what had happened to me. In the next 48 hours I went thru as much horror as the night before. The local police knew me from having been a runaway and they assumed I was just a slut anyway and got what I deserved. In actuality, I had never even slept with a man yet. The injustice and humiliation of their assumptions and mockery actually made me somehow feel guilty about my own rape. As if I was responsible because I liked to walk by the river! For the next few days I had to look at hundreds of mug shots and line ups of men on probation. It didn't take long to get confused and exhausted to the point I couldn't even give a clear description of the three men any more. I was ridiculed by the police. They thought it was funny that after being raped many times for over an hour that I couldn't remember their faces...They joked that maybe I was too involved in what was going on to notice what they looked like...implying that perhaps I was enjoying being violently raped! I was so enraged that I was afraid that I would just pick any three faces I didn't like the looks of and send them up. So I just walked away...all my life I have been walking away from my own powerlessness from this experience. The feeling that there is nothing I can do to change what happened to me and the chances of it ever happening again. I have been hiding in fear, afraid to go anywhere alone, not able to rely on my own strength.

Working on this project has helped me confront my feelings. It's more than just a way to work out the pain and anger of being a victim for so long. It's more than my rape I need to confront. It's the continual rape of all women in every city—on every billboard that sells liquor along with a half-dressed

HOW IN THE HELL CAN WOMEN FEEL GOOD ABOUT THIS KIND OF SOCIETY?

It was a warm August night. I was running barefoot in an unfamiliar neighborhood, carrying my sandals, underclothes and a light jacket in my hand. Sweat was pouring down my face and my body ached. I had just been raped.

I had only had time to put on my dress before escaping from the man who had raped me, and the apartment where he had taken me. I felt half-crazy with the fear that he would try and follow me, and wondering who could I run to for help. It had only briefly crossed my mind to find a phone and call my parents. I quickly dismissed that as a possibility, even though I was living at home with them. I was 18—preparing to go away to college the next week. I really didn't want to take the time to find a phone booth; afraid that the rapist would catch me there.

I needed the immediate security of being with people, and out of panic. I ran to the home of some friend of my mother's, whom I had met only several days before. She and her husband were standing in their yard when I ran up to them. The woman barely remembered me, but she could tell I was in some kind of danger. I asked to use her phone to call someone to come get me. She offered to take me home. I let her. And, on the way, we passed the rapist in his car. I was sure he was looking for me.

When I got home, my mother had seen her friend's car pull out of the driveway and asked why Joe (the rapist) had not brought me home. I gave her no answer, but she could tell by looking at me that something was desperately wrong. I had scratches on my arm, my entire body was flushed, my hair was tangled, I was barefoot and dirty. From that night on, for about a week, I secluded myself from my family, spending days and nights in a darkened room in the basement, eating only occasionally. After several days like this, my family was on the verge of a collective breakdown, and I told my mother and sister what had happened. They both begged and warned me not to tell my father because he would want to kill Joe. Of course, that seemed like just the thing that SHOULD happen, to me, but I didn't tell him. My sister and mother liked Joe very much and found it difficult to believe he could do such a thing. I had been out with him a couple of times, but had decided I didn't want to go out with him anymore. At the time of the rape, he was my best friend's boyfriend. He treated her horribly, but she still thought she loved him and wanted to go out with him. I hated that, in itself.

Joe tried calling me several times after the rape, but I refused to talk to him. This angered my sister and mother. He came by the house, and I refused to see him. I would begin crying hysterically every time he would show up, unexpectedly. One night, my sister arranged for Joe to come over to the house. I found out about it before he got there, and my dad—still not knowing exactly what had taken place—helped me get out of the house and find a place to go before Joe got there.

What do you do when the guy who rapes you is a 'friend of the family's'? When two members of your family don't know who to believe—you or the rapist—where do you go for support and comfort? Do you EVER get over that loneliness? Not completely...if at all. The city didn't have any kind of Rape Crisis Center or help for rape victims. I was too afraid to press charges, after hearing about the terrible things the police put victims through, and with the fear of revenge from the rapist. I just carried the incident around inside me, until many years later, I found someone I could love enough and trust enough to talk about it with. Of course, I told my friend who was dating Joe soon after the rape, and she cared enough about me to get rid of him and to stand by me.

In the eight-and-a-half years since the rape happened, I think back to that event in my life and try desperately to determine WHY it happened. I remember feeling extreme anger and guilt, at the same time. If I would have only done something differently...maybe it wouldn't have happened. But, when I think about the man—the kind of tough, insecure, always-having-to-prove-his-masculinity man that Joe was—and how violent he generally was, I am not at all surprised that he could be capable of rape. The actual scene in the apartment plays over in my head to this day, and I see him using his penis as a weapon against me; a form of punishment for not wanting to go out with him. And now, I still have anger, but it has changed, in perspective. I share the anger of all women who cannot feel safe walking down their own street, at night; the anger of women who, by society's antiquated standards, must fear for their lives if they DO call for justice to be performed against rapists, as they would for any other criminal, or crime that has been committed. I feel anger for those women who have lost their lives trying to defend themselves against a rapist, and I feel anger, and sorrow and pity for a society that hasn't done more to eradicate rape. How in the hell can women feel good about this kind of society? I wonder...would more be done if men were the victims?

"The proper sphere of government in regard to the relations of the sexes, is to enact such laws as in the present conditions of society are necessary to protect each individual in the free exercise of his or her right to love and also to protect each individual from the forced interference of every other person, would compel him or her to submit to any action which is against their wish and will."

REWARD INFORMATION

Any person having information concerning the "Friendly Rapist" is asked to contact the Kitty Genovese Womens Project. Please type or print the information and do not sign your own name. Instead write a six digit number in the lower left corner of the last page. Write the same number in the lower right corner, tear it off and keep it. This will serve as identification. The information will be forwarded to the police department and in the event that the information does lead to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for these crimes. Arrangements will be made for payment of the reward through communication with our mailing address. Please mail all correspondence to the Kitty Genovese Womens Project, 316 5th Avenue, Suite 301, New York, New York 10001.

WAYS TO AVOID RAPE: A NEW STUDY

One in every ten women in the United States can expect to be sexually assaulted during her lifetime; yet until recently there has been almost no well-tested information on what she can do to avoid being raped. Now, however, a new study has come up with some surprising conclusions.

Last year, the Queen's Foundation, an organization of women attorneys and judges, did a series of long interviews with rapists and their victims. What they learned must be viewed tentatively. Their findings raised more questions than they answered. Their discoveries relate mainly to rape by strangers, rather than rape by acquaintances, which accounts for at least half of all rapes. But their report, entitled "Rape: Prevention and Resistance," is nevertheless, an important step that will help women gain more control over a phantom that has haunted and subdued us since before the Romans dragged off Sabine mothers, daughters and wives.

Broadly, the Queen's Bench study advises that women must learn to not be nice to potential rapists.

The rapists studied turned out to be losers—in effect, insecure men who fear women and assault them to assert dominance and enhance their tiny sense of self-worth. Not one of the offenders said lack of sexual outlet provoked his act.

The rape victims, as distinguished from victims of attempted rape, tended to be timid and to project an image of vulnerability. When accosted they ignored inner warning signals or dismissed them as paranoia. When attacked they tended to collapse into terror rather than concentrating on defense.

All this is not to say, of course, that no rapes would occur if more women were assertive. Most of the offenders in the study told interviewers they intended to rape somebody that day and searched for a suitable victim until they found one. The women they chose seemed, to them, vulnerable and/or available. They avoided self-assertive women.

In almost half the cases, a casual conversation preceded the attack. It often lasted more than ten minutes and was friendly and impersonal. The rapist appeared to assess his victim during the chat and to begin to assert his control.

The women chosen as victims often felt uneasy, though they were not sure why. Often, they went with the rapist to some other place before the attack. On the way, there was often a warning signal: a wrong turn, an unplanned stop. When the warning signals went unheeded, the attack began, sudden and forceful.

One question the study did not answer is whether, once a rapist has identified a woman as vulnerable and has begun his attack, she should resist violently.

"With almost equal frequency," the researchers reported, "resistance deterred rape, or made the assailant angrier, or made him feel 'dominant' and 'good', or scared him. It was at this stage that violence intensified." The woman is compelled to make a highly personal choice here, they concluded, a choice that may depend on whether her assailant has a weapon.

"It's impossible for a victim to know what kind of a rapist she's dealing with," said Lorraine Copeland, director of the research. "There is no magic rule. Nothing works in every case."

The best method to avoid rape is to act assertively at the first moments of contact with a potential rapist, says Copeland. The woman's protection lies in "awareness and ability to keep cool, pay attention to cues and respond assertively," Copeland says. "She should be firm and reassert her control."

"Women are trained to disregard their intuition," Copeland points out. They must learn to listen to their own unconscious signals. And what's never advisable is for a woman to assume the Snow White role—to play the helpless victim who survived because she was so good the huntsman couldn't kill her. All this will merely play into the rapist's sick needs.

To encourage women to assume more power, the Queen's Bench Study recommends that workshops to encourage assertiveness and provide training in self-defense and provide training in self-defense techniques be mandatory in schools and be available through community agencies.

Last year, FBI statistics showed forcible rape up one percent nationwide since 1974. Since 1970, it is up a startling 48 percent. A higher rate of reporting could explain the increase. But there may be other factors as well. In San Francisco, Police Lt. John J. Jordan, head of the sexual assaults section, says "The level of violence has escalated." He has no research to prove a correlation, but, he says, "We see too many cases that are carbon copies of the latest flick that has hit the area."

For copies of the report write to Queen's Bench Foundation, 244 California St., Suite 210, San Francisco, Ca 94111.

Some men tell us we must be patient and persuasive; that we must be womanly. My friends, what is a man's idea of womanliness? It is to have a manner which pleases him—quiet, deferential, submissive, approaching him as a subject does a master. He wants no self-assertion on our part, no defiance, no vehement arraignment of him as a robber and a criminal...while every right achieved by the oppressed has been wrung from tyrants force; while the darkest page on human history is the outrages on woman—shall men still tell us to be patient, persuasive, womanly?

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, 1870

"Any lawyer who says there's no such thing as rape should be hauled out to a public place by three large perverts and buggered at high noon, with all his clients watching."

Dr. Hunter S. Thompson

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Our appreciation goes to the countless number of women in Dallas and other parts of the country who supported this project with their energies, ideas and donations. With very special love and kisses to Vicky, M, P, F, and L.

We thank our cultural educators, women who have helped us realize over the last few years that rape is not a problem for women to deal with individually, but as massive social and political problem that must be dealt with on multi-levels before it happens. But most of all we thank our sisters who have been victims of rape for sharing their humiliation, hurt and anger with us and other women. In the end that is what made us go on.

TEXAS PENAL CODE

CHAPTER 21. SEXUAL OFFENSES

Section

- 21.01. Definitions.
- 21.02. Rape.
- 21.03. Aggravated Rape.
- 21.04. Sexual Abuse.
- 21.05. Aggravated Sexual Abuse.
- 21.09. Rape of a Child.
- 21.10. Sexual Abuse of a Child.
- 21.11. Indecency with a Child.
- 21.12. General Provisions.
- 21.13. Evidence of Previous Sexual Conduct.

21.01. DEFINITIONS

- 1). "Deviate sexual intercourse" means any contact between any part of the genitals of one person and the mouth or anus of another.
- 2). "Sexual contact" means any touching of the anus or any part of the genitals of another person or the breast of a female 10 years or older with intent to arouse or gratify the sexual desire of any person.
- 3). "Sexual intercourse" means any penetration of the female sex organ by the male sex organ.

21.02. RAPE

- a). A person commits an offense if he has sexual intercourse with a female not his wife without the female's consent.
- b). The intercourse is without the female's consent under one or more of the following circumstances:
 - 1). he compels her to submit or participate by force that overcomes such earnest resistance as might reasonably be expected under the circumstances;
 - 2). he compels her to submit or participate by any threat, communicated by actions, words, or deeds, that would prevent resistance by a woman of ordinary resolution, under the same or similar circumstances, because of a reasonable fear of harm;
 - 3). she has not consented and he knows she is unconscious or physically unable to resist;
 - 4). he knows that as a result of mental disease or defect she is at the time of the intercourse incapable either of appraising the nature of the act or of resisting it;
 - 5). he knows that she submits or participates because he erroneously believes that he is her husband; or
 - 7). he has intentionally impaired her power to appraise or control her conduct by administering any substance without her knowledge.
- c). An offense under this section is a felony of the second degree.

21.03. AGGRAVATED RAPE

- a). A person commits an offense if he commits rape as defined in Section 21.02 of this code or rape of a child as defined in Section 21.09 of this code and he:
 - 1). causes serious bodily injury or attempts to cause death to the victim or another in the course of the same criminal episode; or
 - 2). compels submission to the rape by threat of death, serious bodily injury, or kidnapping to be imminently inflicted on anyone.
- b). An offense under this section is a felony of the first degree.

21.04. SEXUAL ABUSE

- a). A person commits an offense if, without the other person's consent and with intent to arouse or gratify the sexual desire of any person, the actor:
 - 1). engages in deviate sexual intercourse with the other person, not his spouse, whether the other person is of the same or opposite sex; or
 - 2). compels the other person to engage in sexual intercourse or deviate sexual intercourse with a third person, whether the other person is of the same sex as or opposite sex from the third person.
- b). The intercourse is without the other person's consent under one or more of the following circumstances:
 - 1). the actor compels the other person to submit or participate by force that overcomes such earnest resistance as might be reasonably expected under the circumstances;
 - 2). the actor compels the other person to submit or participate by any threat, communicated by actions, words, or deeds, that would prevent resistance by a person of ordinary resolution, under the same or similar circumstances, because of reasonable fear of harm;
 - 3). the other person has not consented and the actor knows the other person is unconscious or physically unable to resist;

- 4). the actor knows that as a result of mental disease or defect the other person is at the time of the deviate sexual intercourse incapable either of appraising the nature of the act or of resisting it;
 - 5). the other person has not consented and the actor knows the other person is unaware that deviate sexual intercourse is occurring;
 - 6). the actor knows that the other person submits or participates because of the erroneous belief that he is the other person's spouse; or
 - 7). the actor has intentionally impaired the other person's power to appraise or control the other person's conduct by administering any substance without the other person's knowledge.
- c). An offense under this section is a felony of the second degree.

21.05. AGGRAVATED SEXUAL ABUSE

- a). A person commits an offense if he commits sexual abuse as defined in Section 21.04 of this code or sexual abuse of a child as defined in Section 21.10 of this code and he:
 - 1). causes serious bodily injury or attempts to cause death to the victim or another in the course of the same criminal episode; or
 - 2). compels submission to the sexual abuse by threat of death, serious bodily injury, or kidnapping to be imminently inflicted on anyone.
- b). An offense under this section is a felony of the first degree.

21.09. RAPE OF A CHILD

- a). A person commits an offense if he has sexual intercourse with a female not his wife and she is younger than 17 years.
- b). It is a defense to prosecution under this section that the female was at the time of the alleged offense 14 years or older and had, prior to the time of the alleged offense, engaged promiscuously in sexual intercourse or deviate sexual intercourse.
- c). It is an affirmative defense to prosecution under this section that the actor was not more than two years older than the victim.
- d). An offense under this section is a felony of the second degree.

21.10. SEXUAL ABUSE OF A CHILD

- a). A person commits an offense if, with intent to arouse or gratify the sexual desire of any person, he engages in deviate sexual intercourse with a child, not his spouse, whether the child is of the same or opposite sex, and the child is younger than 17 years.
- b). It is a defense to prosecution under this section that the child was of the opposite sex, was at the time of the alleged offense 14 years or older, and had, prior to the alleged offense, engaged promiscuously in sexual intercourse or deviate sexual intercourse.
- c). It is an affirmative defense to prosecution under this section that the actor was of the opposite sex and was not more than two years older than the victim.
- d). An offense under this section is a felony of the second degree.

21.11. INDECENCY WITH A CHILD

- a). A person commits an offense if, with a child younger than 17 years and not his spouse, whether the child is of the same or opposite sex, he:
 - 1). engages in sexual contact with the child; or
 - 2). exposes his anus or any part of his genitals, knowing the child is present, with intent to arouse or gratify the sexual desire of any person.
- b). It is a defense to prosecution under this section that the child was at the time of the alleged offense 14 years or older and had, prior to the time of the alleged offense, engaged promiscuously in:
 - 1). sexual intercourse;
 - 2). deviate sexual intercourse;
 - 3). sexual contact; or
 - 4). indecent exposure as defined in Subsection a2) of this section.
- c). An offense under this section is a felony of the third degree.

21.12. GENERAL PROVISIONS

The exclusion of conduct with a spouse from the definitions of offenses in Section 21.02 through 21.05 of this code (Rape, Aggravated Rape, Sexual Abuse, Aggravated Sexual Abuse) extends to the conduct of persons while cohabiting, regardless of the legal status of their relationship and of whether they hold themselves out as husband and wife.

21.13. EVIDENCE OF PREVIOUS SEXUAL CONDUCT

- a). Evidence of specific instances of the victim's sexual conduct, opinion evidence of the victim's sexual conduct, and reputation evidence of the victim's sexual conduct may be admitted under Sections 21.01 through 21.05 of this code (rape, aggravated rape, sexual abuse, and aggravated sexual abuse) only if, and only to the extent that, the judge finds that the evidence is material to a fact at issue in the case and that its inflammatory or prejudicial nature does not outweigh its probative value.

RACISM AND RAPE

This project would not be complete without an open acknowledgment of the racism that pervades the American criminal justice system, particularly with respect to rape.

Since our judicial system is based on a discriminatory application of the law, this list will contain a disproportionately large percentage of minority and low income males. In a classist, racist society, the people lowest on the ladder of privilege are first to be punished—and usually overly punished—while white middle and upper class males often have seeming immunity.

There are many myths about rape. One of the more persistent myths is that most rapists are black men who attack white women. The injustice of this racial "myth" was called to national attention as long ago as the infamous Scottsboro trial.

Evidence now shows that the vast majority of rapists attack women of their own race. In the book "Patterns of Forcible Rape" based upon a two year study of rape cases in Philadelphia, sociologist Menachem Amir noted that only four percent of all rapes involved black men and white women. The National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence points out that racism underlies the making of this myth. "Because white males have long had nearly institutionalized access to Negro women with relatively little fear of being reported, it is likely that the true proportion of Negroes raped by whites is larger." The American criminal justice system parcels out few convictions in rape cases, but most of these penalties are levied against black men.

Professor Marvin Wolfgang of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Criminology and Professor Anthony Amsterdam of the University's Law School did a comparison study of three thousand rape convictions in eleven Southern states between 1945 and 1965. Thirteen percent of all convicted blacks were executed. Blacks were seven times as likely as whites to receive the maximum penalty. If a black was convicted of raping a white woman, he was 18 times more likely to be executed as the black man who raped a black woman or a white man who raped a white woman. (Against Our Will, Men Women and Rape, Susan BROWN-MILLER, Simon and Schuster, 1975, pg 215).

Interracial rape has been used by our racist society to keep white women in fear and black men in line. It has been used to justify one of the bigger atrocities in the history of the U.S.—lynching. Rapes of black and other minority are taken less seriously by law enforcement and our court system than rapes of white women.

Today, women are raped by men, most often by gangs of men, for many of the same reasons that blacks were lynched by gangs of whites: as group punishment for being uppity, for getting out of line, for failing to recognize "one's place," for assuming sexual freedoms, or for walking in the wrong part of town and presenting a convenient, isolated target for group hatred and rage.

When we analyze the crime of rape, we must recognize not only that we live in a racist society, but also that the people on the lowest level of privilege are most often victimized by society. Continued on Page 17

"Other people think they know why I do the things I do. One psychiatrist I talked with told me that I rape women because I fear them and cannot adequately cope with the games they play. Another said that I am incapable of having normal sexual relationships because I view sex as nothing more than an energy release and not as a means of expressing/sharing my love for a particular woman. Another put forth the theory that I used rape to strike back at my mother.

"There's truth in what they say. I often quote them when the need arises to justify/rationalize my behavior. But there's a thing which most people, including the psychiatrists, overlook. The main reason why I do the things I do is that I find rape enormously stimulating and very exciting.

"It's fun."

"Once in a cabinet," Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir related, "we had to deal with the fact that there had been an outbreak of assaults on women at night. One minister suggested a curfew; women should stay home after dark. I said, 'But it's the men who are attacking the women. If there's to be a curfew, let the men stay home, not the women.'"

Come on, now, Miss Jones, isn't it a fact that you have had at least three lovers in the past six months? How many men have you slept with, Miss Jones? And: What were you doing in this man's apartment? Weren't you inviting sex? And isn't it a fact that the defendant picked you up in a singles bar? Are you in the habit of going to singles bars, Miss Jones? How often did you go there? Once a week? Twice a week? Every night? How many men did you pick up? What do you mean, you don't remember? And the judge sitting up there looking stern: Yes, Yes, what kind of woman picks up men in bars? And the jurors nodding gravely: Yes, what kind of woman goes to men's apartments? What kind of woman goes to bars without even a bra on, jiggling like that?

RAPED

by Leslie Weston

They said it happens at night

but it was a perfectly beautiful day with the sun so bright it revealed too much

They said rapists carry dangerous weapons knives or guns

but he was armed with calm threats height and weight and my terror

With fat fists he decided
I was like any cookie he'd swiped from any jar:

just here for the taking

Tears stagger down my face,
I plead
This car is a cage
He closes in, invades
I'm splintered into powerless fear and rage

His hands are nonchalant thieves stealing all I own
He devours me with greedy eyes
I am collapsing into stone
As he shivers and sighs

...This woman, at any rate, felt too terrified to resist. When it was over and he had left [saying, on the way out, "Call you tomorrow, baby"], she went to the police, not bruised, not hysterical, simply enraged, and they gave her the classic going-over: "They made me repeat it again and again, every damned detail...I felt like they loved hearing it. They wanted to know if he sucked my breasts, if he moved fast or slow, all that crap. One of them asked when was the last time I went to bed with a man, and I said it was none of his business, and he said, 'You come in here and tell us you got raped, and you think it's none of our business if you sleep around?' I yelled, 'I don't sleep around!' and he said, 'That's what they all say.' Another one said, 'Did it feel good?' and I said, 'Good? The bastard raped me.' And he said, 'Yeah, sure, but didn't it even feel a little bit good?'"

"To my surprise, more than 75 percent of the women I spoke with were in sympathy with retaliatory actions of many sorts. Women who had not, and would not, take such actions themselves, again and again expressed satisfaction that other people were doing so." "The message to women and girls in this era of violence must be to live defensively, so as not to expose themselves to the dangers of rape. If we obeyed even half the precautionary suggestions appearing with great regularity in magazines, newspapers and specially-designed "safety" movies, we would soon find ourselves doing nothing at all. We would be effectively paralyzed, and rape would have served its purpose." ---Carol Sternhell.

"These women have no reason to lie. Sometimes there's a love triangle, where a woman yells "rape" to get even with a guy, but you can screen those cases out easily enough. But, for God's sake, when the woman never saw the guy before in her life, and she tells you he raped her in the park or in the hallway, and she identifies him...what more corroboration should a judge need? Why isn't this woman's word good enough?"

QUESTION
If you rape a woman and steal her T.V. in New York what can they get you for?

ANSWER
Stealing her T.V.
New York Times - January 30, 1972

"If I had been robbed, my chances of getting that guy would have been alot better. I'm beginning to think it's a good precaution to tuck a five-dollar bill into your panties--then if you are raped, you can always charge assault with intent to rob."

It is time for women to take their lives into their own hands and start fighting for their self-respect, not only because it is the best way for any human being to live, but also because to live any other way is damned dangerous.

RAPE IS A DEADLY INSULT AGAINST WOMEN'S SELF-DETERMINATION.

RAPE IS ALL THE HATRED, CONTEMPT AND OPPRESSION OF WOMEN IN THIS SOCIETY CONCENTRATED INTO ONE ACT.

WOMEN MUST DESTROY THE MYTH THAT THEY ENJOY RAPE. SUBMISSION IS NOT THE WAY TO ACCOMPLISH THIS.

FOR INEZ

And when the verdict was read
"Not guilty," the judge said
You hung your head and cried
.....long
'Cause you knew he was wrong

Well, Katie, Kathy, Kasindra and Anne and Rita and Marsha and Marilyn if a man has decided that he wants you and no matter what you say he won't look at you like a person and he won't get out of your way

And he's telling you you'll like it and he's looking at you with hate and you know you'd rather die than accommodate.....
Don't hesitate

Inez you're not alone
There is Joann
Inez you're not alone
There is Joann

Linda, Marcy, Sharon and Sue
Paula, Belinda and Nina you too
If you know he raped you don't depend on no white mans law to protect you and defend you
'Cause it won't do that at all...
Won't do that at all

Many a woman has stood up against the doctors
the lawyers
the judge and the jury
the police the papers
the parents and her lovers
and come out all wrong

And many a woman will say it don't pay to report a rape in this day and this time

So Joannie stabbed him once and again
and again
and again
for his crime
eleven times

And poor old Clarence Alligood he surely was surprised when that pretty little colored girl was the cause of his demise

And Inez she fired once and then she fired again and cursed herself with regret that she missed his friend....
Miquel it's the end

And when the verdict was read
"Guilty, Guilty," the judge said
Inez you hung your head and cried
.....long
'Cause you knew he was wrong

Since it is sexist attitudes that perpetuate rape in our society, it is unlikely that change will come immediately. Until that change occurs we will praise and support the actions of Inez Garcia, Joann Little, Deborah Kantaeng, Yvonne Wanrow, Debra Sue Lacy, Virginia Tierce, Rosa Lee Ingram, Sue Nix, Sandra Lowe, Carol Bryant, Dessie X Woods and any other women who not only attempt to defend themselves, but take aggressive actions against rapists. ---Women Armed for Self Protection - Dallas, Texas

We are outraged by a society that tolerates double sexual standards between men and women and practices bizarre dating rituals declaring that a woman should say no to a man even if she doesn't feel it in order to remain "respectable" as a woman.

We are outraged by a society where women are unable to walk down the street, even their own, without being the victim of cat calls and or malicious verbal attacks at their personhood. We are further outraged that women are supposed to consider this a compliment instead of the degrading ordeal it really is.

LITTLE THINGS

When I was eight years old, my best friend and confidant was my cousin Steven. He was thirteen. Sometimes he passed on to me little bits of knowledge about life. Life, at that time, was mostly football and sex, and sex was mostly dirty jokes with no punch line but all the words to make a pubescent giggle.

Though we joked a lot, there were times when Steven shared important and serious information with me. One day behind the barn he related the following story to me.

"This man, he picked up a girl hitch hiker. He wasn't going to give her a ride at first, but it was cold and he felt sorry for her. Well, he took her to where she said she needed to go and was gonna drop her off, you know? But as the car stopped, the girl said, 'Give me all your money or I'll scream rape.'

"Well, the guy was pretty scared but he said, 'To hell with you. I just gave you a ride and I'll be damned if I'll give you my money.' He was pretty mad.

"Before he could do anything, she jumped out of the car screaming rape and that guy went to jail for twenty years."

The whole story probably took a minute to tell.

See how nice the man was? See how conniving the girl is? See why we need to maintain tough standards for cross-examining rape victims in court? See what will happen if you're nice to a girl?

As a male, I am constantly confronted with generalizations like these by men who completely believe what they are saying. I have attempted to explain that this example of "rape" is in the one-in-a-thousand category. I have pleaded intellectually. I have tried to be convincing. I now have only one course of action. I get real pissed off, look 'em right in the eye, and say emphatically, "Bullshit!"

I spent ten years of my life believing the story and its accompanying conclusions. I can't resist the chance to shout what I wish I'd had the sense to shout when I was eight.

"It's easy to be a Monday morning quarterback and ask, 'Why didn't you scream?' I never ask that question, it serves no purpose except to implant more guilt."

Detective Loretta Belardo

rapists that is all to often unchecked by sensitivity, gentleness and compassion for others.

Women have been raised in a segregated, sheltered manner that leaves them barely able to survive in an aggressive, male-dominated society. We have been objectified as sex-objects, encouraged to dress accordingly, and then accused of being enticing if we are raped. We have been warned our whole lives to be careful and at the same time told not to concern ourselves with unlady-like affairs such as self-defense. We have been expected to practically imprison ourselves under maximum security conditions for our own protection. However, we can stay off the streets at night, never talk to a strange man, never dress seductively, never pick up a hitchhiker and still get raped. We can always carry a hat pin, always make sure our car doors are locked and always avoid going to bars alone and still get raped. We can light every square inch of the United States and have armed guards posted outside every women's dormitory and YWCA and women will still get raped until this society stops educating its men to be rapists.

LAW & ORDER

On January 10, 1977 the following article appeared in the Dallas Morning News.

JURY TRIALS

Is Dallas soft on crime? Hardly. Figures from the nine felony courts in the county on penalties from 628 convictions in 705 jury trials have these interesting sidelights:

There were 110 life or 99-year sentences returned during the year and one death penalty.

Of 64 murder trials, 20 resulted in life or 99-year sentences and one in a death penalty.

There were 189 jury trials for robbery that resulted in 29 life or 99-year sentences.

There were 35 life or 99-year sentences resulting from 145 trials for burglary.

If the lawless element in the country isn't getting the message, it isn't because the penalties aren't assessed.

The fact that rape was not included in the report was possibly not accidental. The statistical information on rape fails to support the main premise.

For the same period from Jan. - Sept. 1976 there were 3 times the number of reported rapes in comparison with the reported murders (555 reported rapes-186 reported murders). There were 64 murder trials and only 23 jury trials for rape with 19 convictions.

Realizing that only 1 out of every 20 rapes is reported and that almost half those reported are discounted as not "actual" rapes or dismissed and that many men who do plead guilty before the court are given slaps on the wrist ($1.00 fines-30 days probation) it is not hard to imagine the message that the "lawless element" in this society is getting about rape. To quote Judge Lawrence H. Cook of the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court, "When it comes to rape, women are outside the effective protection of the law and criminals know it."

A 53-YEAR-OLD RAPE VICTIM:

I was going to work one morning. The sun was shining. I had just gotten a new job, so I started out early thum thum thum Bang! ka lug ka lug ka lug—flat tire. I had a spare, but no jack, so I got out and started to walk to a service station to get help. I thought about the bad luck. I would be late to my new job. I was crossing a small bridge over a rather deep gully and creek when suddenly a car squealed to a halt beside me. A man jumped out.

"Where ya goin' lady? That your car back there with a flat? Get in and we'll take ya to a garage." I said, "No, I'll go on by myself, it's just a little way. I—" He grabbed my neck with one hand and brought my wrist up behind my back, he threw me into the back seat. I screamed and struggled, but the car was already in motion.

In the next nine hours I went through agony, torture, terror and shock of a sort that I never dreamed existed. Oh, I had read accounts like this.

Words do not express or describe the wordless dizzy sick stomach-churning acrid taste of raw savage blood-chilling fear. And these words just don't tell it. Nothing can ever begin to portray that death staring you in the face. It's real as though not a part of this world experience.

After many completed sexual acts, much choking, blacking out and having my arms pinned under me and twisted, these three professional rapists were tired and spent. But, when one quit another would try even if he was physically spent, he'd try and try. By this time I had decided my only hope was in not fighting as it only incensed them and inspired them to more brutality. I also concluded that just getting out of the car did no good because they might try to run me over with their car.

This was all in a lake and wooded area, where it was obvious from their conversation that they had done this many times before.

When they went through a very small town, they had to slow down for something, and I seized the opportunity and leaped from the car. I rolled over and over, but got up running.

I ran to a small store. No one would do anything to help me. The men were coming back after me in their car. I could see by these people's actions that they would not get involved, so I ran out the back door and across a field and up on a porch and through a screen door into a woman's kitchen. I was screaming and sobbing to please shut and lock the door. The men were coming to kill me.

Even now as I write this my heart races and my hand shakes at the memory of it all. Ten years have not diminished the terrible vision in my mind's eye.

The policeman's attitude was not from alarm but from ridicule. "One more slice off a loaf don't hardly make no difference. You're alive ain't ya? Had your fun and now you want an alibi for hubby? Well, don't count on me. Now, if they'd been niggers it would be a different story! I'd like to hunt some niggers that rape white women. We got dogs for that. Don't you figger we're going to make trouble for white fellas that was probably just funnin' anyhow. No ma'am, just 'cause you took on more than you could handle don't come hollerin' rape to me. You best just forget it. You're too old to get pregnant ain't ya? What you worrying about anyhow? Go on home to your hubby and don't say nothing or cause no trouble you can't do nothing about, ok?"

A rug had just been pulled out from under me. At first it didn't seem real. It was all mixed up. My head was spinning with disbelief! How could he say those awful things? I had just cheated death itself. I had been forced into a car; abducted and repeatedly been savagely raped by three men who were experts at the whole thing. Yet the law that I'd been taught all my life to believe in and trust had just been a Judas, a real betrayer. I could not reconcile the facts with what I had been taught since I was a very young child.

When I got home I was crying so my husband asked, "What happened?" As the story spilled out he turned on me—livid with rage.

I was stunned, numb, dumbfounded. A human can only be just so scared, shocked and angry. Past that point senses refuse to register, the brain refuses to think, the body mechanically, robot-like functions and goes through the necessary motions of living. Nature calls a halt to reactions, there are none. Nothing in the next two days is very clear. I ate, bathed, did my work like a zombie. I couldn't cry. I couldn't be consoled. I couldn't discuss it. On the third day my daughter finally insisted I go to the doctor.

I'd known my doctor for years. He was kind and understanding. He took time to talk to me and made me face the facts. He told me that much as he wished it were not true, penicillin and understanding was all I was going to get. The men had gone as countless others have, scot-free. In time my husband would (ha ha) forgive me and almost forget the incident. It has happened exactly as the doctor said it would.

Would you like to know if I forgot? Never can I forget the smell of those filthy, rotten, vile human vermin. Never will I really be without shame in my husband's eyes. Never will I cease to loathe men like the man in the sheriff's office. If it were not for men like this other men could not kill and rape and terrorize women; without any real threat of the law catching them.

If a man robs a bank, he gets caught, convicted and sentenced to twenty years. If a man robs a woman of her life, or decency he has very little to worry about. It's an acceptable sport regardless of what is written in law. It is the weakest link in justice, whether it be apprehension, prosecution and conviction, judging and sentencing or incarceration. No woman anywhere is safe—ever.

I feel that only their death would avenge what was done to me. I also feel quite capable, if afforded the opportunity, of killing three loathsome, evil devils in human form. I would feel justified, but if I were caught I'd be judged a murderer—of course, that's if I were caught.

WE MUST FIGHT TOGETHER OR BE ATTACKED ALONE

A friend's mother once told me, "If I ever got in a position where I were about to be raped, I'd try to talk the guy out of it first and if that didn't work I'd give in, because no piece of ass is worth my life to me." That made sense to me at 15.

Several months later, after running away from home, I got in a position where I was about to be raped. My friends mother's words came to mind while I was held by the throat with a knife on me.

I asked him if he had ever considered seeing a social worker and rationally explained there was nothing wrong with seeing one, because now days many people do.

When he started shaking and said, "Don't tell me that, my mother tells me that." I decided it was time for the second plan of action.

I said, "Okay, go ahead and take what you want, but please don't hurt me and I will report this to the police and you will probably get in alot of trouble."

He said, "I don't care, it's worth it." When I related this story to the police and what my friends mother's advise had been they said, "Oh, so you had planned on getting raped, huh?"

I was put in a juvenile home for two weeks for running away from home and my rapist was in jail for two days for raping me. Charges were never filed.

Maybe it was worth it to him.

RACISM AND RAPE Continued from page 4 and its law enforcement watchdogs. Our society has used racial fear and guilt to "protect" white women (white men's property) from black men. No one ever protected black women from white men who owned them or the white men who raped them.

Though the death penalty does not specify "for blacks only," from 1930 to 1967, 455 men were executed as a result of rape convictions, 405 of them were black; 48 of them were white and two were of other ethnic groups. This means that almost 90 percent of all rape executions during this period involved black men. IN THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES, NO WHITE MAN HAS EVER BEEN EXECUTED FOR THE RAPE OF A BLACK WOMAN.

RELAX AND ENJOY IT

NEW YORK—Weatherman, John "Tex" Antoine will not return to his $100,000 a year job after an "unhandy statement" that just "popped out".

The Illinois-born Texas made his way to New York in 1949 clad in cowboy boots and a 10 gallon hat. His show attracted nearly 2,000,000 viewers nightly on WABC TV.

On November 24, following a news item concerning an attempted rape, Antoine remarked, "With rape so predominant in the news lately, Confucius once say: 'If rape is inevitable, relax and enjoy it.'"

Within 25 minutes WABC TV received between 650 and 700 calls from irate viewers. Antoine later apologized for the statement and said he was not aware that the news item referred to an eight-year-old girl.

Yvonne Wanrow

In 1973 Yvonne Wanrow, a Colville Indian woman from Spokane who shot and killed a man who was threatening to attack her and her children, was found guilty of second-degree assault and sentenced to two concurrent 22-year prison sentences. In February 1976 the case was re-tried, but at the present time the judges still have not returned a verdict.

Wanrow's attacker, William Wesler, had a history of sexual offenses and had previously attacked her children and raped the seven-year-old daughter of her friend, Shirley Hooper. But despite positive identification of Wesler by Hooper and the three children, the police had refused to arrest him.

After Wesler's attack on two of the Hooper children on August 11, 1972, Shirley Hooper, afraid that he would return, asked Yvonne Wanrow to spend the night with her. The two women and their five children were later joined by Wanrow's brother-in-law and sister and their three children.

At five a.m. a drunken and incoherent Wesler barged through the front door of the Hooper home, lurched toward a three-year-old asleep on a couch, then turned toward Wanrow, who was at that time in a cast and on crutches. Reacting instinctively, Wanrow shot her attacker and wounded his companion, David Kelly, who fled.

Just before this paper went to press the highest court in the State of Washington overturned a verdict, adopting a feminist argument underscoring the validity of self-defense. It wrote: "In our society women suffer from a conspicuous lack of access to training and the means of developing those skills necessary to effectively repel a male assailant without resorting to the use of deadly weapons."

DISARM RAPISTS

SMASH SEXISM

No More Fun and Games, July, 1971

CRIMES AGAINST WOMEN

The above ad first appeared in High Times and National Lampoon magazines as an advertisement for the Stones' newest album Black and Blue. Atlantic Records later plastered it across a billboard on Sunset Strip in Los Angeles and added in bold print, "I'm Black and Blue from the Rolling Stones and I love it!"

Within a matter of days, armed with fire-engine-red paint, five women scaled the billboard, painted bruises over Mick Jagger's face and scrawled "This is a Crime Against Women!"

Outrage has been a constant feminist reaction to Jagger and The Stones since the hit song Midnight Rambler which glorifies the Boston Strangler and recreates the rape/murder of Beverly Sams. "Oh God, hit her head...rape her...hang her..."

A group called Women Against Violence Against Women has called for a national boycott of all Rolling Stones records as well as the following labels: Atlantic Records, Warner Brothers Records and Elektra. The boycott will protest the portrayal of women in violent and sexual situations to sell records.

Additional records included in the boycott are:

Thriller*—a woman lying on the ground after an assault, her clothing askew, the contents of her purse strewn about.

Wild Angel*—a woman gagged with a heavy chain.

Do You Want A Thing?*—a group of men dragging two women across the floor.

Honey*—a nude woman covered with honey as a group of men laugh in the background.

In New York a spokesperson for the group said, "These record covers perpetuate the myths that women like to be victims, that they're easy and appropriate targets, that as victims they're sexually exciting and entertaining, as well as the myth that this is appropriate and natural behavior for men. We think it's harmful in that it contributes to the overall environment that romanticizes, trivializes and even encourages violence against women."

Susan Brownmiller, author of Against Our Will: Men, Women and Rape added, "If the illustrations showed the lynching of blacks or the gassing of Jews, then people would understand it as a political issue, but tie a woman up and that's sexy. Our job is to make it clear that pornography is violence against women, and that is beyond the pale of censorship. I really believe that the feminist movement attack on pornography is important, and this group is launching it."

Women Against Violence Against Women was started last March to protest the screening of a film called Snuff. The movie, made in an unidentified Latin American country, is purported to show the actual dismemberment of an actress. Early news releases by Allan Shackleton, president of Monarch Releasing Co. of New York, said the film "depicts in graphic terms the slaughter of four young actresses." Shackleton, who expects to net $14 million off the "slasher" film, says he is "not at liberty to disclose publicly whether the killings are real." The film is being sold for $1,500 per copy and "trusted people" view it for $200 a head.

The film has been reported to show sex acts between an actress and one or more actors. Then, according to the reports, a knife is produced and the actress, unaware of the true nature of her role, is stabbed to death and dismembered.

In Buenos Aires, federal police suspect the films were produced in Argentina. At least three prostitutes have been found dead in Mendoza, Argentina. All were mutilated by knife cuts and the arms of one had been cut off.

NIGGER; CHICK, BROAD, CUNT IT'S ALL THE SAME

Recognizing that rapists are in no significant sense different from other men does not make the act less horrible. Rather, it brings into question the society in which ordinary men can be rapists. Ordinary men could perform atrocities at Buchenwald and Mylai because they believed their victims were Jews and Gooks. They had been told, and they believed, that the people they were killing were not really human beings. This is the basis of the most horrible racial crimes. People raised in the North, hearing the stories of lynchings and castrations of blacks in the South, are often shocked when they meet their first Southern bigot. The man who participated in the lynching party last night might be the perfect baby-sitter for a two-year-old child this afternoon, if that child is white. For a racist, skin color can disqualify one as a human being, can put one into a category of creatures against whom it is permissible to act in ways that he never could against one of his own kind. And for the sexist man (and most men in our society are sexist), sex puts one into the same kind of category.

One of the women who responded to our questionnaire was the victim of a particularly brutal gang rape. After the rapists had finished with her, they took her in a car to dump somewhere. As they were driving along, they said, "Let's get rid of this one, and find another piece of meat." They had not humiliated, degraded, beaten, and terrified a human being they had used a piece of meat. If an ordinary woman is a piece of ass, a box, a lay, a cunt, a hippie chick, a whore, then the ordinary man is a rapist. The man who asks another, "Did you score? Does she put out? Had any lately?" is a potential rapist.

Some might say we are being too sensitive about language. It is not merely the language; language is only a symptom. It is all part of the process of dehumanization. When you look at what human beings have done to the people whom they exclude from the human race by that sort of language—what human beings have done to niggers and kikes and chicks and broads—it is easy to see why we object. There is a set of rules governing the behavior of one human being toward another, and we want women to be recognized as human beings and given the protection of those rules. Today, in this society, women do not have that status, and among other things, they get raped.

"MY CONSCIENCE IS CLEAR FOR HAVING FOUGHT AND KILLED AT LEAST ONE OF THE MEN WHO VIOLATED MY BODY."

INEZ GARCIA

On the evening of March 19, 1974, Inez Garcia was dragged by two men from her apartment in Soledad, California. Behind the apartment building, one of the men, Luis Castillo raped her while 300-pound Miquel Jimenez prevented her escape. Afterwards, she made her way back inside, loaded a .22 caliber rifle and set out in search of the two men. Five blocks away, she found them. Jimenez threw a knife at her, she ducked and fired a half-dozen shots. When the police arrived, Castillo was unharmed but Jimenez was dead.

Her only remorse, she says "is that I gave up at the moment of rape instead of resisting. I was afraid. I fought later, but I should have defended myself immediately."

Inez was charged and sentenced to five years to life imprisonment for 1st degree murder. Judge Stanley Lawson insists that the issue of rape is irrelevant in this "murder case plain and simple."

At this time Inez has been released, after spending nineteen months behind bars. Her defense committee raised and posted $5,000 for her bail to await her appeal. An additional $7,000 is needed immediately for legal fees and expenses. All checks should be made payable to the Inez Garcia Defense Committee, 2486 Grove Street, Berkeley, California 94704.

LITTLE RAPES

Hey, baby, where ya goin', whatcha doin', what's happenin'? Ya lookin' good, sugar. Nice ass. Looka them legs. Wanna give me some? Mama. Hey, look at those. Where's your bra, honey? Don't they get cold that way? I'll keep 'em warm. What have you got there? What a nice piece. Wanna drink? Where ya going' so fast? Can I come too? Ha, ha, ha. Ain't ya goin' to talk to us? Ain't ya even gonna smile? Whatsa matter with you? You stuck up, or something? Think you're too good, huh? Ugly bitch anyway, fat legs...Hey, wanna come up to my house? Show ya a really good time. You got real nice legs, honey. Got anything between 'em for me?...Hey, look at that one, what a pig...Hey you. Your blouse is undone. Whooooo. Ain't ya gonna give me a peek? Bouncy, bouncy, bouncy. Doin' anythin' tonight? How much? Huh? How much for it? Ten bucks? Five? Hey, whatsa matter with you? I'm just trying to be friendly..

Rape, as we define it, is any sexual intimacy, whether by direct physical contact or not, that is forced on one person by another. If you are subjected (many of us are) to this kind of violation every day, a gradual erosion begins—an erosion of your self-respect and privacy. You lose a little when you are shaken out of your daydreams by the whistles and comments of the construction workers you have to pass. You lose a little when a junior executive looks down your blouse or gives you a familiar pat at work. You lose a little to the obnoxious drunk at the next table, to that man on the subway, to the guys in the drive-in.

In themselves these incidents are disgusting, repellent—in fact, intolerable. Acceptance of them as normal is dangerous. This is one of the many ways in which women are prepared to be victims.

Learning to avoid being hassled in the street is as much a part of living in the city as learning to cope with public transportation. To see a black man in the South (or in the North) subjected to this kind of abuse would make one sick. It would be painful to watch him as he lowers his head and tries to get past a group of whites unmolested. Today blacks are no longer expected to "know their place", although deliberate humiliation and discrimination against them still exists. But women face this same kind of badgering and taunting, and accept it. They have come to think of it as an unavoidable part of life.

THE RAPIST IS THE MAN NEXT DOOR

In a university town in the Midwest there is a training center which deals with, among others, the mentally retarded. One of the students at that center was a young woman of twenty-five with a mental age of eleven years. She was from a farm in the outlying area, but she lived in an apartment by herself in town. She had few friends, which is true of many people afflicted with mental retardation. At some time, however, she met a couple of men from a fraternity house who struck up an acquaintance with her. The acquaintance ended, we are told, in her being taken to the fraternity house and used sexually by about forty men, members of the fraternity and others. The "men" also attempted to force intercourse between her and a dog, and they put bottles and other objects up her vagina. For reasons best known to themselves, they then took her to a police station and charged her with prostitution, offering to drop charges if she were institutionalized. She was.

The story first came to light when one of the fraternity members bragged about it to another man in one of his classes. He misjudged the other man, who was horrified and told the story to one of the professors. A group was formed to confront the fraternity with the charge. At first, the fraternity men admitted that it had all happened, but they protested that she had done it of her own free will. A woman with a mental age of eleven, alone and with a need for friendship and affection that was not being filled, gave her consent to the things we described above, they said, and so the thirty or forty adult college men who did them were innocent. Later, when the whole thing was made public, they denied the story altogether. The woman, meanwhile, was in an institution where, upon discovering that she was pregnant, she had a complete emotional breakdown.

We have told this story in order to show what normal, red-blooded American boys are capable of doing, not in isolation, not in dark and lonely alleys, not in the jungles of Vietnam, but in their own fraternity house with the approval and participation of their peers. These were not men who had no other access to sexual activity. They were not deviants in any usual meaning of that term. They are graduating from that university and going out to assume their places in the young executive club, in the research laboratory, and in the political arena.

It is time, then, for women to stop thinking of rapists as sick or crazy men. You might have very easily dated one of the men in that fraternity, or your daughter might have, or your older sister might have. The rapist is the man next door.

NEWS BRIEFS

CLEVELAND — A Cleveland department store advertised the sale of men's knee high socks inscribed, "Help Stamp Out Rape — Say Yes." More than 200 women attending a statewide meeting of NOW descended upon the store and dumped them from a glass case.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA — Deborah Kantaeng, 19-years-old, was held on suspicion of murder for firing a .410 shotgun at point blank range into the neck of Danny Charles Allen, 21.

Ms. Kantaeng told investigators that Allen and Carl F. Tice, 21, had abducted her as she left her job in a shopping center, and drove her to Jerome Park in Santa Ana. The men held a hunting knife against her throat and raped her repeatedly, she said.

To get them to release her without further harm, she promised not to report the assault to police and gave them her home telephone number.

She told investigators the men called several days later and said they were coming over. Police said Robert Boyd, 44, her father, opened the door and the 5-foot, 98-pound Ms. Kantaeng blasted Allen in the neck as he walked in. Tice fled.

NEWARK, N.J. — A New Jersey judge has ruled that under state law a man cannot be charged with raping his wife.

Essex County Court Judge Nicholas Scalera made the ruling Monday in dismissing a rape indictment against Alfred Smith, 27, of New Brunswick, N.J. He had been charged with breaking into his wife's home, beating her and raping her in front of their two children.

Scalera said it is not against the law for a husband to force sex upon his wife "when the raper is still legally married to his wife, unless there is a judicial order for separation or divorce."

Although Smith was living apart from his wife Alfreda, 26, they were not legally separated.

DENVER—A young woman entered the police station to report a rape, "You will be able to identify my attacker because I bit off his tongue," she told the police.

The man was arrested and later convicted after he sought treatment in the county hospital.

AUSTRALIA — The charge of "false complaint" was leveled against a woman who had been raped by nine men a year ago last May. After she was examined and interrogated for eight hours by the police (while allowed no food and only one glass of water), she was so desperate to get away from them and go home to shower and get something to eat that she agreed to withdraw charges. Police questions had included: Did you enjoy it? Did you climax? The police then decided to charge her with having made a false complaint. She was finally acquitted, largely because the Australian Women's Movement took up the issue nationally.

LOS ANGELES — An anti-rape squad picketed the marriage of a known community rapist with placards that read "TWO WOMEN IN THIS GROUP WERE RAPED BY THE BRIDEGROOM".

DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA — Six young women, apparently seeking to avenge a friend's rape, armed themselves with knives and attacked a Daytona Beach man, police said Saturday.

John Dotson, 20, was reported in satisfactory condition at a local hospital with multiple stab wounds.

Police said the man had gotten into the car of young Daytona Beach woman early Friday morning, held a razor to her neck and raped her.

Police said the woman later swore out a warrant for Dotson's arrest. But before officers could arrest him, he was jumped by six females in the front yard of his home, police said.

Police said Dotson had been charged with sexual battery in connection with a rape.

There is no difference between being raped and being run over by a truck except that afterward men ask you if you enjoyed it...

There is no difference between being raped and going head first through a windshield except that afterward you are afraid not of cars but of half the human race.

FRIENDLY FORCES GO HOME

AUSTRALIAN "LADIES' MAN" TRIED BY HIS PEERS

On October 13, 1976, after an eight-day trial, an Australian court, sitting in Washington, D.C., acquitted an Australian sailor of having raped a Baltimore woman while his ship was in port for the Bicentennial celebrations. This was, as far as can be determined, the first trial under foreign law held in the United States.

The trial was made possible by the Friendly Forces Act of 1944. Australia is the only nation whose forces have been declared friendly forces (by President Johnson in 1965); it may therefore try its servicemen for crimes committed in the United States, provided the state in which the crime occurred agrees. Maryland did, and so did the woman, for the dispassionate and idealistic reason that the man, Able Seaman Kevin Clark, was entitled to be tried by a jury of his peers.

The 21-year-old Baltimore woman complained that Clark had raped her on a ramp leading to a public tennis court on a barge on the Baltimore waterfront on July 9 after 2 A.M.

Clark had met the woman a few hours previously at a hospitality party given for some of the crew of his ship, HMAS Hobart. They had gone dancing and drinking with two other sailors and two other Baltimore women. Clark, 19, acknowledged a sexual encounter with the woman, denied technically having intercourse with her, but said she had "enjoyed" what took place. The woman said she was forced.

Defending Clark before a jury of seven middle-aged military males, all officers of the Royal Australian Navy, was John Gallop, an aggressive Australian. He invited the officers to "bring to bear your experience as men of the world, as men of maturity and experience of life," and declared that it was "part of the traditional wisdom of mankind that in sexual offenses there is a special danger of unfounded accusations."

He repeated the story of Potiphar's wife's false accusation of rape against Joseph in Genesis, and declared: "That's how long this kind of thing has been going on."

The woman—referred to throughout the trial as a "girl"—had been, he noted, "late for her menstrual period, therefore according to some points of view it is safe for intercourse and according to some points of view the libido is at its highest...."

"Dr. Kinsey said the difference very often between a good time and an allegation of rape is whether the parents are up when the girl gets home—this is a scientific finding."

An attorney from the Baltimore prosecutor's office said: "If we had tried this case, it would have been closed. He would have been convicted."

Clark himself, immediately after acquittal, was telling reporters that he would go home to Australia to "pick up my motorbike, see my kid Matthew." Matthew, 10 months old, was living with his mother, Maureen. Who's Maureen? "Oh, some chick from Melbourne."

"You're a bit of a ladies' man, aren't you?" asked Tracie Rozhon of the Baltimore Sun.

Clark smiled broadly. "Oh, you know, I get around a bit."

"Think what a traumatic effect it would have on a young boy to be raped by a homosexual," the Police Lieutenant cried out during a community relations confrontation on homosexuality.

"But what about the girls? What about rape?" a young lesbian countered.

"That's different. That's 'normal'," two policemen replied in unison.

RAPE IS MANS FANTASY AND WOMEN'S NIGHTMARE

TWO WOMEN TWO ATTACKS TWO LIVES.... DISMISSED

At George Washington University two students, 18 & 19 years old, filed rape charges against the same attacker. One woman charged she was attacked in a campus washroom and forced to have oral sex; the other that less than an hour later the same assailant forced her into a school auditorium to sodomize and then rape her.

Both women independently identified their attacker. The trial was delayed for 10 months. He was then tried and acquitted. His lawyer argued during the three-day trial that the "two young ladies voluntarily agreed to go and have relations with the defendant." After less than two hours' deliberation, a jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Immediately afterward, the judge abruptly told the panel that there had been a confession that had been inadmissible as evidence. "You will find out that during the hearing when I asked you to step outside, we had testimony...that the defendant confessed to the charges. Thank you."

The jurors were shocked by the judge's disclosure. Defending the verdict later, one male juror said: "We had felt the girls could've gotten away, and wondered why they didn't resist more."

Police have traditionally advised women not to resist a rapist lest they be beaten or perhaps killed. By its verdict, the jury seemed to tell the women that in order to be convincing rape victims they should have been beaten until they died—or at least until the welts showed.

"Even without the confession the jury should have known that I didn't consent," said one woman after the trial. "He kept hitting me in the head and I was sure that if I fought, I'd be found dead."

The most chilling testimony during the trial came from the second woman plaintiff, who said that a campus security guard had witnessed the rape, but ignored her pleas for help. The guard testified that the couple "looked like lovers" to him and that the woman was "sniffling," but did not cry out to him for help.

Later, a city council representative said, "The rape laws should be revised so that courts would pay far more attention to the claims of the accusers."

Since their courtroom humiliation, one has dropped out of school and left town. The other has reportedly isolated herself from many of her friends and refuses to discuss how the experience has affected her.

MARYLAND RAPISTS MUST PAY

(ZNS) A Maryland court, in a landmark decision, has ordered two convicted rapists to pay their victim $365,000 for physical and mental damages she suffered from the rape.

A jury of eight men and four women in Montgomery County awarded 23-year-old Mary Knight—who was raped three years ago—$40,000 in compensatory damages and $325,000 in punitive damages.

Knight charged in federal trial and then again in civil court that she was abducted and raped repeatedly over a twelve hour period. The two convicted of the crime are now serving sentences in jail for the crime, to which they pleaded guilty.

Knight insists that the purpose of the trial was not to collect money, saying that the men, now in prison, can make merely small payments now.

Knight said she sued because "I knew I was going to remember that night for the rest of my life, and I wanted them to remember it too."
